

Aviation Security Culture in the United States

1 July 2021

Key Transportation Security Administration (TSA) Priorities and Principles

- Security is Everyone's Responsibility
- Commit to Our People
- Stakeholder Relationship Building

Security is Everyone's Responsibility

- Public awareness campaigns as a force multiplier for TSA security efforts:
 - TSA's Not on Our Watch and This is My Airport awareness campaigns.
 - Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) If You See Something, Say Something awareness campaign.
- Community engagement and public outreach.

Commit to Our People

- Personnel-driven policy, procedure, and business practices through opportunities for direct feedback from employees.
 - TSA Idea Factory.
 - National Advisory Council (NAC).
 - Employee Advisory Committees (EACs).
- Open channels for communication.
 - Field Intelligence Officer and Network Information Officer to connect intelligence and threat information between TSA Headquarters and front-line Transportation Security Officers in the field.
 - Continuous employee engagement, communication, and recognition in nationwide TSA Administrator Town Halls.
- Employee appreciation and morale-boosting programs.

Stakeholder Relationship Building

- Building relationships and safety coalitions with relevant stakeholders across the public and private sector.
 - Aviation Security Advisory Committee (ASAC)
 - Industry partners, including airlines, aircraft operators, known consignors, and airport authorities.
 - DHS, Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), and U.S. government agencies.
 - Support ICAO Security Culture initiatives, especially the Year of Security Culture.

Questions?

NOTE: For additional details or context on TSA's efforts to promote Security Culture, please see the AVSECP/32-IP/4 Aviation Security Culture in the United States Information Paper.

