SUPPORTING ORGANIZATIONS

Airlines for America (A4A), formerly known as Air Transport Association of America, Inc. (ATA), was the first and remains the only trade organization of the principal U.S. airlines.

The fundamental purpose of the association is to foster a business environment that drives our nation's economy and global competitiveness. By working with members in the technical, legal and political arenas, A4A supports measures that enhance aviation safety, security and industry well-being.

The International Air Transport Association (IATA) is its global trade organisation. Over 60 years, IATA has developed the commercial standards that built a global industry. Today, IATA's mission is to represent, lead and serve the airline industry. Its members comprise some 230 airlines – the world's leading passenger and cargo airlines among them – representing 93 percent of scheduled international air traffic.

The International Coordinating Council of Aerospace Industries Associations (ICCAIA) is the international organisation of aerospace industry associations. Its members are engaged in the design, development, manufacture and in-service support of aeronautical and space products and technologies, including related ground-based systems.

ICCAIA was established in 1972 to provide the civil aircraft industry a means to be represented with observer status in the deliberations of the International Civil Aviation Organization. Today ICCAIA provides an avenue for the world's aircraft manufacturing industry to offer their expertise to the development of the international standards and regulations necessary for the safety and security of air transport.
