

Biography of Remington Low

Remington Low has worked in the aviation field for the past 28 years. Currently Remington is the Regional Officer for Aviation Security and Facilitation with the ICAO Asia and Pacific Regional Office.

In this capacity, he assists Asia and Pacific States with the understanding, requirements and implementations related to the International Standards and Recommended Practices of aviation security and facilitation.

Prior to joining the Regional Office, Remington has spent 12 years in the ICAO Headquarter, Montreal Canada, beginning with the Aviation Security Audit Section before assuming the role of the Audit Information Officer in the implementation of both the ICAO's Universal Audit Programmes related to aviation security and safety. He is both a certified Aviation Security Auditor and Instructor with ICAO.

Previous to his various responsibilities with ICAO, Remington had 10 years of working experience with the Civil Aviation Authority of Singapore in the Airport Management Division, after which he further enhanced his aviation career with a Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.) that specialized in Aviation.