

Confident Travel Initiative

Kristen Habenicht
January 28, 2021

Boeing commissioned global passenger surveys

Fliers have favorable attitude towards screening, attitude differs the most with willingness to quarantine

Multiple ways to protect people and communities connected by air travel

Safety and uniform standards are critical to the restart of international travel and economies

Quarantine

Government-mandated and managed Requires infrastructure, accommodation, compliance

Molecular tests

Diagnostic test that detects virus's genetic material

RT-PCR regarded as gold standard of testing
Can be costly, slower than Antigen

Antigen tests

Diagnostic test that detects virus's specific proteins

Fast and affordable, increasing number of manufacturers
Slightly less accurate than RT-PCR

Uniform testing and screening protocols critical for international travel

International Travel
Recovery

Objectives

- Protect people and communities in the travel system
- Minimize the risk of disease transmission
- Share decision-making information with stakeholders
- Rebuild confidence in a COVID-free travel system

Strategies

- Model the effectiveness of screening and testing options
- Research intended and unintended consequences of testing and screening

Near-term actions

- Calibrate the model with help from 3rd parties (healthcare, universities, airports, governments)
- Engage with global stakeholders for early awareness and partnership
- Inform recommendations for efficient & effective protocols

A silhouette of a woman wearing a hat and holding a suitcase, standing in front of a large window. Outside the window, an airport terminal with a distinctive white, curved, ribbed roof is visible. A plane is flying in the sky above the terminal. The scene is bathed in a warm, golden light, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. The woman's reflection is visible on the floor in the foreground.

Travel Confidently.

boeing.com/confident-travel