

Safety Recommendation

The Australian Transport Safety Bureau recommends that as a priority the US Federal Aviation Administration liaise with European Aviation Safety Agency and the International Civil Aviation Organisation to develop an international standard for the marking on all aircraft with rocket-assisted recovery parachute systems to ensure that they fully alert persons to the hazards and the danger areas on the aircraft.